One step is enough to light up the night

One step is enough to open doors

The Marine TEKnology® brand, specialized in the nautical sector, a branch of the security and home automation systems company Sicurtek, has been successfully registered with the Ministry of Business and Made in Italy.

“This important step - said the owner Stefano Barducci - allows us to see the originality of our idea recognized and to gain even more credibility with designers, builders and shipowners with the system we patented. It allows us to detect the transit and permanence of a potential intruder on the sensorized areas of the vessel, but it can be used for additional commands and particular applications requested by the shipowner, such as the automatic opening of doors, the switching on of lights or the activation of video verification with existing cameras.

It offers the advantage of being absolutely invisible and the installation of the sensors is simple, does not require welding and drilling, nor any additional labor on the shipyard. Tek is a safe, reliable product, does not wear out, does not oxidize and does not require any maintenance. With our system we provide an additional innovative response to owners of super and mega yachts”.
